What are you going to do now, Baby Boomer? Well, if you do not know, or just have an inkling but may need that little push, this book will show you how and exactly what to do.

Saving for a rainy day is one thing, but not following your passions is another. If you retire at 55 years old, you have plenty of time to reinvent a new future.

Chances are that you will live 25 years or more in retirement. Being frugal for 25 years or more can seem like hard work especially after all the time you spent working to raise your family and putting them before yourself. This list is meant to give you ideas that may help you enjoy your well-earned retirement.
