

A Magical Journey to Rome: Exploring the Eternal City Through Children's Poetry

Rome, the Eternal City, where history comes alive with every step. As adults, we often appreciate this ancient city for its grandeur and rich heritage. But have you ever wondered how a child perceives the wonders of Rome? Join us on an enchanting adventure through the prism of children's poetry, as we embark on a unique journey to Rome.

A Visit To Rome

Buongiorno, Benvenuto!
At last to Rome you've come,
At last your paths have found it,
This in your heart is home.
Amongst it's ancient maestrie,
Let eyes and spirit stroll,
In shady Trastavere's
Cobbled alleyways of the soul.

'Tis I that stands on Trajan's Mount,
His ashes at my feet,
His victory column in death does show,
The Emperor's last defeat.
From here I see the slaughterhouse,
That drew the vagrant crowd,
To see my brothers tortured lives,
Played out in death unbowed.

Now who keeps the city Gate?
Now who holds the keys?
The glory that did once make Rome,
Was deaf to martyrs pleas.
But theirs is the Eternal City,
And this a bouldered ruin,
It's broken columns are rotten teeth,
It's pride is it's undoing.

Hard by stands our brother Paul,
In Marcus Aurelius's stead.
Who in this place at Nero's wish,
He did treacherously behead.
Now who holds the city gate?
And now who sets men free?
Nay not the Epaphroditus sword,
I, St Peter, hold the key.

Beneath Bernini's baldachin,
There they say I lie,
Thus all the pomp of Papacy,
Is gathered here on high.
Let all the earth make pilgrimage,
Let every soul pursue,
A path, to this, The Lord's House,
And never mind the queue

Chapter 2: Awe-Inspiring Wonders

The Colosseum stands tall, its mighty presence captivating all who come near. With its tales of gladiators echoing through time, our young poet finds inspiration in the bravery and glory of the past. Rome's ancient ruins become portals to another era, where the imagination runs wild amidst fallen pillars and crumbling stones. Each step reveals new wonders, creating an indelible impression on the young poet's heart.

Chapter 3: The Dance of Culture

Rome, a melting pot of cultures, enralls our young poet with its vibrant tapestry of life. The Trevi Fountain, adorned with legends and wishes, enchants him with its ethereal beauty. The Spanish Steps become a stage where different languages and smiles blend harmoniously. With every bite of pasta, the flavors of Italy explode in his mouth, igniting his poems with the essence of Roman cuisine.

Chapter 4: Secrets of the Vatican

The Vatican, a sacred place where faith interweaves with art, beckons to the young poet. Inside the Sistine Chapel, he gazes in awe at Michelangelo's magnificent frescoes, crystallizing divine stories in his mind. The whispers of the past echo through St. Peter's Basilica, inspiring verses that explore the complexities of faith. Holy ground becomes a muse, providing a sanctuary for the young poet's words to flourish.

Chapter 5: Farewell to Rome

The journey nears its end as our young poet bids farewell to Rome. Emotions swirl within him as he realizes that this experience will forever shape his perception of the world. Rome leaves an indelible mark on his heart, a treasure trove of memories captured through poetry. As he boards the plane, he carries Rome with him, a part of his soul forever linked to the eternal city.

“ "In Rome, every step is a verse, every breath a melody. This journey has awakened my inner poet, allowing me to see the world through a prism of wonder and gratitude." - The Young Poet ”

Epilogue: A Journey Ongoing

The young poet's journey may have come to an end, but his love for poetry and exploration continues to evolve. Let his experience inspire us to appreciate the beauty and magic that surrounds us. Through the eyes of a child, we rediscover the wonders of Rome, reminding us to embrace our inner poet and always seek new adventures.
