The Cat Who Wore A Hat is the second in the 'Creature Teachers' series of books aimed at children from 18 months to 6 years of age.

Each book is written to entertain and educate your child (or friend's child/grandchild). There are no politically correct messages delivered in these stories, they are traditional children's stories which aim to extend your child's vocabulary in a fun way.

Oliver the Cat is always hungry. He dreams about food and spends his days waiting for his next meal (when he isn't asleep). One day, this gets him into a lot of trouble ...

Lavishly illustrated by Lucy Freegard, the book looks great on your Kindle but looks best in colour on a Kindle Fire or iPad/tablet using the free Kindle App.

If you enjoy reading about Oliver the Cat, look out for The Skylark Who Suffered From Vertigo and The Giraffe Who Couldn't Laugh, with many more titles to follow.

If your child like the works of Judith Kerr (Mog, The Tiger Who Came to Tea) or Julia Donaldson (The Gruffalo) and similar, then the Creature Teachers series is worth a look!
