

The Fascinating Exploration of East-West Philosophical Traditions

The Age-Old Connection Between East and West

Throughout history, the world has witnessed the interaction between Eastern and Western philosophical traditions. These two thought systems are deeply rooted in their respective cultures, offering unique perspectives on the nature of existence, the meaning of life, and the pursuit of knowledge. Selected essays on East-West philosophical traditions provide a captivating insight into the convergence of these two rich and diverse philosophical lineages.

Understanding the Essence of East-West Philosophical Traditions

East and West present distinct philosophical frameworks, but they also share fundamental concepts. While Eastern philosophy tends to focus on self-realization, spirituality, and interconnectedness, Western philosophy emphasizes reason, logic, and individualism. However, through the lenses of selected essays on East-West philosophical traditions, we can discover the fascinating interplay between these seemingly different worldviews.

The Exploration of Dualism and Non-Dualism

Dualism and non-dualism are significant concepts in the realm of philosophy, explored by scholars from both Eastern and Western traditions. Selected essays shed light on the perspectives of renowned philosophers like Plato, Lao Tzu, Descartes, and Nagarjuna, who offered insights into the nature of reality, mind-body duality, and the concept of self. By delving into these essays, we can embrace the intellectual discourse surrounding the essential questions that have perplexed humankind for centuries.

Feng Youlan (冯友兰, also rendered as Fung Yu-lan) was born on December 4, 1895 in Qiyi Town, Tanghe County, Henan Province. He graduated from the Department of Philosophy of Beijing University in 1918 and from the Graduate School of Columbia University in the United States, where he obtained his Ph.D. in 1923. After returning to China, he served successively as a professor at Zhongzhou University, Guangdong University, Yanjing University, Tsinghua University and Southwest United University. He was head of the Department of Philosophy, dean of the College of Arts and acting president of the School Synod of Tsinghua University, and president of the College of Arts of Southwest United University. He taught at Beijing University from 1952. He died on November 26, 1990.

Feng was the leading philosopher, historian of philosophy and educator of modern China. His original works on philosophy include A New Treatise on Neo-Confucianism, On New Affairs, Explanation of the New World, A New Treatise on the Nature of Man, The Spirit of Chinese Philosophy and A New Treatise on the Methodology of Metaphysics, establishing the system of Neo-Confucianism, and making great contributions to the modernization of Chinese philosophy. As a historian of philosophy, he compiled A History of Chinese Philosophy (two volumes), A Short History of Chinese Philosophy (in English) and A New Edition of

A History of Chinese Philosophy (seven volumes), laying the foundation for the history of Chinese philosophy. As an educator he chaired the College of Arts of Tsinghua University for 18 years, contributing to the setting up of the unique "Tsinghua School" and training a large number of qualified scholars in literature, history and philosophy. Feng authored over 30 books and more than 500 articles, with a total of 6.7 million words. These were compiled into the 14-volume The Complete Works of the Hall of Three Pines (volumes 1-9 and 11-14 have already been published). His publications also include the Selected Philosophical Writings of Fung Yu-Lan, and A Taoist Classic-Chuang-Tzu, which he translated.
