A Fairytale Fit for a Princess

The plot revolves around a prince in search of a princess to marry. He encounters numerous women, but none seem to be genuine royalty. One stormy night, a young woman arrives at the castle claiming to be a princess. The queen, skeptical and curious, decides to test her authenticity. The young woman is given the royal treatment and a bed stacked with mattresses and covered with twenty feather beds. But hidden beneath this luxurious setup was a single pea, meant to determine whether she is truly a princess.

While ordinary people would never be able to feel a small pea through all those layers, the princess, with her delicate nature, complains about a lump disturbing her sleep. Convinced by her sensitivity, the queen and the prince conclude that she is indeed a real princess.
